Managing Editor George S. Smith scooped your editor with Friday's picture of trash and garbage dumped on the gravel road connecting Rocky Mound with State Highway No. 4.

That's one of my favorite drives, the road plunging into a creek-bed deep in the woods—after which you climb the hill and encounter roadside pollution. I had been watching it the last couple of weeks to find out whether it was old or continuing pollution; decided it was fresh pollution and worth a picture—when Smith beat me to it.

A couple of years ago a subscriber wrote me to complain of trash-dumping on the north fork of the Rocky Mound circle road, and I photographed it and had the newspaper post a reward for the arrest and conviction of illegal dumpers on a public road. Nothing came of it, except that the publicity apparently stopped the dumping.

The situation on the Rocky Mound-State 4 road today is somewhat different.

The City of Hope, I was informed, levies a charge of $2.50 on private cars using the municipal dump ground near Rocky Mound. The Star sought to confirm this at city hall today and was told we were in error. The charge for dumping by persons living beyond the city limits is 50c for a pickup load, ranging up to a maximum of $5 for the largest loads.

The city is probably within its rights in charging county residents for use of city-owned property—but the county has no public dump ground that I know of, therefore the net effect of local government operation is to encourage pollution of a scenic rural road.

Either the county government should establish a free dump ground or make some settlement with the city for use of the city dump by county residents.

Editor The Star: In reply to Howard Byers' card to you regarding his missent letter from Dallas, Texas, I believe I can explain to all your readers the mail dilemma we are in today.

You see, before Zip Code (which I think was fostered upon us by Socialism) every employee in a post office or railway post office was required annually to pass one or more case examinations, depending upon the mail he handled, to hold his job; and he had to make a 95 per cent grade. I remember the first Arkansas case exam I took in '48. I studied a solid six months in advance every day and passed with a 98 per cent, and later passed numerous ones with 100 per cent. I do not mean to brag. There are other gentlemen in Hope, retired now, and still working who did the same thing, and, I should add, the deceased. All of these people were proud of their public trust, and strived to dispatch the United States Mail correctly and on time.

Today the situation is somewhat different. Zip Code is the thing. According to the people who started this as long as you had a name and the Zip Code Number your letter or card would be delivered promptly. On paper it looks as good as the leaning Tower of Pisa, unfortunately it doesn't work that way. At present mail is dispatched by Zip Code number and that is fine if there wasn't the human element involved, and mostly semi-skilled labor employed.

Now we get down to Howard Byers' missent letter. The sorting machine operator in Dallas can count from one to ten, we hope, but he or she (Women's Lib, you know) punches the wrong Sectional Center number on the Final tie letter for Sectional Center 718, which we are in, and all that tie of mail goes to that sectional

Jets continue bombing

VN troops capture coast district

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese troops made major advances on two fronts today, fighting their way to the walls of Quang Tri Citadel in the northern counteroffensive and recapturing a second district town on the central coast.

In the air war, American jets bombed the southern sector of Hanoi on Sunday for the second successive day, setting a battery plant on fire and triggering a dozen explosions, the U.S. Command reported.

Associated Press correspondent Dennis Neeld reported from Quang Tri that government paratroopers pushed through a hail of North Vietnamese artillery on the approaches to the Citadel, then encountered withering fire through two breaches in the 40-foot walls of the 19th century fortress.

"The North Vietnamese are funneling their firepower into the gaps in the walls, and it's murder in there," one officer said.

Officers said the South Vietnamese were taking substantial casualties but refused to say how many.

Neeld said the paratroopers launched their assault at dawn from a string of bunkers within 50 yards of the Citadel walls, moving behind a heavy artillery and aerial bombardment. The two breaches in the walls had been made two weeks ago by U.S. jets with laser-guided 2,000-pound bombs.

Meanwhile, in Binh Dinh Province, on the central coast, more than 1,000 South Vietnamese rangers moving on foot and by helicopter recaptured the district town of Tam Quan, Associated Press photographer Neal Ulevich reported. He said the North Vietnamese put up only light resistance.

Government forces were not so successful in the Que Son Valley, 25 miles south of Da Nang, where the North Vietnamese reportedly launched a series of heavily assaults.

Field informants said an outpost called Lion was overrun and two of the government defenders were killed, 17 were wounded and 61 were missing.

On the northern front, Fire Base Bastogne and three other positions guarding the western flanks of Hue were hit by more than 1,200 rounds of shellfire. Field reports said 11 South Vietnamese soldiers were killed and 22 were wounded.

The air attacks on Hanoi's Van Dien battery plant were the first since the full-scale bombing of North Vietnam resumed April 6.

The North Vietnamese Foreign Ministry said that many factories and other economic installations and workers' collective housing area were destroyed, and many civilians were killed.

North Vietnam also claimed that 13 U.S. jets were shot down Saturday and Sunday and at least one pilot of a Navy F8 was captured. The U.S. Command reported only two planes lost, a Navy RF8 reconnaissance jet downed Saturday 35 miles south of Thanh Hoa and a Navy A7 that crashed in the Tonkin Gulf Sunday night. The Command said the pilot of the RF8 is missing and the pilot of the A7 was rescued.

FBI enters case, agent visits here to take interviews

The Federal Bureau of Investigation is conducting a "fact-finding" investigation into the alleged irregularities concerning the opening of a ballot box here following the May 30 Democratic preferential primary, the Star learned today.

An investigation by Prosecuting Attorney Dub Arnold of Arkadelphia into the alleged incident ended Friday, and no charges were filed.

The FBI was requested by U. S. Attorney Bethel B. Larey of Fort Smith to check into the reports of reputed election violations.

An investigator for the Federal Bureau of Investigation was in Hope today checking on the alleged incident. Early today, the investigator, who requested not to be identified, interviewed George Smith, managing editor of the Star, and said other interviews would be conducted. The investigator was confronted by Parker outside the Star office, and the two men went into the office of James Pilkinton, Parker's attorney.

The FBI agent, working out of a Texarkana office, said he was on a "fact-finding" trip, and was attempting to collect facts concerning the alleged opening of the ballot box.

Arnold, in a lengthy report, stated that in his opinion Donal Parker, chairman of the Hempstead County Democratic Central Committee, entered the absentee box to check the votes cast in a specific race—the county committee contest in the Spring Hill Township between incumbent Garland Kidd and W. E. Tarpley. Tarpley edged out Kidd by a single vote.

However, Arnold said he would not file charges in the matter, although he said Parker committed a "technical violation" of an Arkansas statute, because he could find

Gun battles erupt in Ireland, 1 dead

BELFAST (AP) — A sniper killed another British soldier in Belfast today, while a civilian died and four were wounded in a crossfire in Londonderry.

The soldier was shot at an army post on the edge of the Roman Catholic Ballymurphy district. His was the 473rd confirmed death in the three years of religious warfare in Northern Ireland, and the 103rd British soldier to die.

British troops raided two Catholic housing estates in Armagh, southwest of Belfast, and arrested 10 persons for questioning. Sweeps in Catholic areas of Belfast on Sunday turned up more than 700 pounds of gelignite and other explosives.

The casualties in Londonderry were passengers in a car caught between British troops and snipers during one of three gun battles in Northern Ireland's second city.

Two other battles broke out when guerrillas attacked army posts in Londonderry with rifle and fire and nail bombs. The Army said troops hit three gunmen and no soldiers were hurt.

Leaders of the right-wing Vanguard Movement called a civil disobedience campaign including refusal to pay rents and local taxes.

A spokesman for the paramilitary Ulster Defense Association—which claims it can muster 43,000 trained volunteers—warned it would attack IRA strongholds within a week.

There were signs the British government was also ready to take a tougher stance against the IRA.

Target practice begins early as candidates 'jab'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democratic and Republican vice presidential candidates are getting in some target practice in advance of the official beginning of the election campaign.

And the new chairman of the Democratic party says the party's financial position is much improved for the 1972 campaign, although they still haven't figured out how to pay all of the multi-million dollar debt left from the 1968 campaign.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, who was named Saturday by President Nixon as his running mate for November, criticized Democratic positions on amnesty, the draft and marijuana in a speech at Anchorage, Alaska Sunday.

He said voters will have a "clear voice" between candidates for the first time, adding, "It would be a tragedy if, after four years, the voters did not return Richard Nixon for another four years."

The Democratic vice presicenter in Pennsylvania. But that's not too bad because today we have airlift for all first class mail so that means only a week's delay in delivery. I can think of a better way. Sincerely, DAVID DAVIS dential candidate, Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, went after Agnew in an appearance on ABC television's "Issues and Answers" program, saying the Vice President "gets right down into the grassroots of a campaign, sometimes into the mud."

Eagleton also indicated he has so far been rebuffed in attempts to meet with AFL-CIO President George Meany to try to win him to the Democratic side.

McClellan will serve as chairman

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The office of Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., said Saturday the senator would serve as chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee while the chairman, Sen. Allen Ellender, D-La., is campaigning for reelection.

McClellan, who is the ranking Democrat of the Appropriations Committee, will serve as its acting chairman until the Senate recesses Aug. 18.

The committee is to consider four important money bills during that period—agricultural appropriations, disaster relief, public works appropriations and the continuing resolution to finance the operations of the federal government.

New pipeline opens up in North Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon sources report that fresh supplies of motor fuel apparently have started flowing into North Vietnam through a new pipeline from South China.

In addition, U.S. reconnaissance planes recently located a new petroleum-storage depot tying into the pipeline. The depot is said to be relatively near the Chinese border, which might inhibit U.S. bombing attacks against it.

For weeks, U.S. photo planes have been monitoring construction progress on the new pipeline that could be vital in keeping North Vietnam's war effort going.

Recent intelligence reports have spoken of petroleum products being discharged from railroad tank cars at Pinghsiang on the Chinese side of the border.

From Pinghsiang the new pipeline runs across the North Vietnamese border and reaches Haiduong, east of Hanoi.

U.S. minefields have stopped Soviet tankers from reaching North Vietnamese ports where they used to unload about 50,000 tons of motor fuel and oil monthly.

There have been reports that Peking has agreed to allow Russian tankers to discharge their loads at Chinese ports for transshipment overland to North Vietnam.

While the new pipeline is considered unlikely to compensate entirely for the closing of North Vietnamese ports to communist tankers, U.S. experts say it could keep North Vietnam's supply trucks and armored battle vehicles rolling.

The North Vietnamese have been burying the four-inch pipe, but surface pumping stations well south of the Chinese border would be vulnerable to air attack. However, the North Vietnamese are believed prepared to replace knocked-out pumping stations with portable equipment mounted on trucks so that the flow of petroleum products could resume.

In addition, intelligence reports say there are signs the North Vietnamese are ready to speed construction of an alternate pipeline east of and roughly parallel to the main line now believed in operation. These signs include discovery of stacks of pipeline sections awaiting installation.

'Modest' campaign set for McGovern for August

Parker denied opening the box on several occasions—once to a Star reporter, and also at a brief private meeting between Arnold, Parker, John Graves, deputy prosecuting attorney, Leo Ray of Hope and Sheriff Henry Sinyard.

Parker refused to comment on the matter following the filing of Arnold's report.

Larey's office was notified about the incident due to the fact that a federal race—for the senatorial post between Sen. John L. McClellan and Rep. David Pryor—was on the ballot.

Arnold stated Friday in a three-page report filed with the county clerk's office: "It is my opinion from the testimony that there was a technical violation of the law in that a ballot box was opened to satisfy a candidate that he had been defeated in a fair and impartial election; that there was no attempt to change or alter any vote and that even the defeated candidate was satisfied with the vote count. I am of the opinion that there was no criminal intent on the part of (Parker) and that any offense by him was an error of judgement..."

Arkansans on committee

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Lee Priest, 29, of Fayetteville and Dick Drake, 29, of Morrilton, both members of the Arkansas Young Republicans have been named to the Platform Committee of the Young Republican National Federation's Convention Committee at Washington. The committee will develop a "youth plank" on such issues as ecology and drugs. The plank will be presented to the Platform Committee of the Republican National Committee.

day that the barrage of attacks from top Nixon administration officials may mean "they're not quite as sure as they thought that Sen. Eagleton and I will be pushovers."

He said at his first general news conference since winning the nomination that "it is regrettable" that President Nixon has abandoned the practice of recent presidents and permitted the secretary of State to attack him "on partisan grounds."

Responding to GOP charges that his is an elitist campaign, McGovern called the GOP effort to re-elect Nixon "a tightly drawn elitist closed corporation" and criticized Republicans who, he said, refuse to reveal the source of $10 million in campaign funds collected before the new federal campaign law became effective. In the news conference on a sunspet terrace of his Sylvan Lake Lodge retreat called to announce formally the major assignments in his campaign, the South Dakota senator also said:

—His campaign will combine anti-Nixon effort with positive proposals of his own. Asked if his primary thrust will be to attack the Nixon record he replied: "Absolutely...I assume that is what it is all about."

—His statement about leaving U.S. troops in Thailand if the North Vietnamese failed to release U.S. prisoners once all American troops are withdrawn from Indochina is only "a gesture" that probably would have little effect. He repeated that he expects the prisoners to be freed once the American troops are withdrawn and bombing halted.

Nixon has been "begging Hanoi" to settle the war. (McGovern said earlier he would go to Hanoi to beg for release of the prisoners if necessary—a statement that has drawn considerable criticism.)

McGovern formally unveiled his top campaign team and vowed "to return government to the people at all levels from the White House to the courthouse."

The Democratic presidential nominee planned to announce major staff assignments for his campaign, most known already, at a news conference today after playing some tennis.

Although today's schedule was relatively light, the arrival tonight of McGovern's running mate, Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton of Missouri, means another busy Tuesday for the South Dakota senator.

McGovern has complained of tiredness, and aides expressed the hope the rest of the week would be relatively light. The senator visits Mitchell, where he lived as a boy, and the state Democratic convention at Aberdeen on Saturday en route back to Washington.

Associates said in advance of the news conference that McGovern planned to give special emphasis to Jean Westwood and Lawrence F. O'Brien in detailing the roles of his campaign advisers. Mrs. Westwood is the new chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and O'Brien is her predecessor and now national campaign chairman for McGovern.

Gary Hart, the senator's campaign manager the past two years, will continue to run the McGovern organization. Frank Mankiewicz, who spent the primary campaign in Washington as national political director, will head the group of traveling advisers.

McGovern gave the first indication of how he plans to spend August in an appearance Sunday on the CBS radio-television program "Face the Nation." Traditionally, the formal campaign doesn't begin until Labor Day. He said both he and Eagleton planned to be active around the country in August but that their campaigning "will be a little lower keyed."

"What I personally would like to do is to use the month of August to get out over the country on a modest basis to spend as much time listening to the concerns of the people as talking," McGovern said.

Among other subjects touched on during the program:

—McGovern said he had not heard from former Democratic presidents Harry S. Truman and Lyndon B. Johnson since winning the nomination. But he said that he "absolutely" wants Johnson's backing, despite their disagreement on Vietnam policy.

—He said he hopes his friends and supporters won't try to help him "by harassing the Republican National Convention but would do it by enlisting in constructive supporting activities in this campaign."

—He called on Republican National Chairman Robert Dole to "issue a warning against any provocateurs in his own camp who may be going to Miami Beach to cause trouble."

Giving a little 'lib' service

NEW YORK (AP) — Feminist Betty Friedan, who predicted a male backlash as the result of female chauvinism in the woman's liberation movement, has run into a backlash of her own.

"This seems to be a case of hell has no fury like a woman scorned in the women's movement," said Olga Madar, a vice president of the United Auto Workers and a member of the policy council of the National Woman's Political Caucus.

Miss Madar was one of many women who sprang to the defense of Gloria Steinem and Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., when Mrs. Friedan singled them out as "female chauvinist bores," antithesis and part of an ideological split within the feminist movement.

Miss Steinem and Mrs. Abzug were restrained in their reaction to Mrs. Friedan's magazine article and news conference Tuesday until it became clear that word of the so-called split made headlines. In increasingly stronger terms, Miss Steinem and Mrs. Abzug offered their rebuttals.

"I think it is not honest of me to say there are no disagreements. There are," said Miss Steinem. "It's worse that women think there is some big philosophical split than that they understand the real problem with one person. Of course there are tactical differences but we also work together."

"But an individual who has delusions of inventing and downing the movement is bound to attack other women who raise their heads. Philosophy has nothing to do with it."

Mrs. Abzug described the article as "theoretically inaccurate and factually wrong and subjective, sensationalist literary projection."

"Many people have fantasies," she said. "But few write them down."

Mrs. Friedan, author of "The Feminine Mystique" and a founder of the National Organization for Women, criticized feminists who portray women as super virtuous and men as the enemy.

'No choice' Irwin says of decision

DALLAS (AP) — Air Force Col. James Irwin says space agency officials had no choice but to reprimand him and two other astronauts for taking unauthorized stamped souvenir envelopes to the moon.

"We did this as three men who thought we were doing the best thing for our families, but we were wrong," Irwin told the Dallas bureau of the Baptist Press News Service in a telephone interview Sunday. He is a Southern Baptist.

The other Apollo 15 astronauts involved were Al Worden and David Scott. All three decided last fall not to accept their share of a reported $150,000 from sales of the envelopes in West Germany.

The incident was reported about 10 days ago. But Irwin said the decision to refuse the money came about eight months ago. He is the first of the three to comment publicly on the incident.

Bid decision upheld

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Supreme Court today upheld the position of Secretary of State Kelly Bryant in a lawsuit over a bid by International Graphics Inc. on a state printing contract.

Bryant had refused to accept the bid of the Little Rock firm because the general provisions submitted with the bid had not been signed by a representative of the firm.

International Graphics' bid was the lowest on the contract. Before the contract was awarded, the firm offered to substitute signed copies of the general provisions, but Bryant rejected the offer.

The firm contended that the general provisions were incorporated by reference in its bid, which said that International Graphics would do the work required by the contract in compliance with the general provisions.

George F. Hartje, a special justice who wrote the majority opinion, said that the requirement to submit signed copies of the general provisions was not "a harsh or impossible one" and was well-known to International Graphics, which had bid properly on state contracts in the past.

Hartje said that it would be possible for a firm submitting a bid such as that of International Graphics to subsequently determine that the contract was unfavorable and that the firm might take the position that it was not bound to perform by the general provisions since it had not signed them.

"Not only that, but if the firm's bid had been accepted, the other bidders who had executed the general provisions and thus complied with all requirements, could well feel that they had been treated unjustly and unfairly," Hartje wrote.

In light of the absence of properly executed general provisions, International Graphics did not qualify as the lowest responsible bidder, the court said.

The case was appealed to the Supreme Court by both International Graphics and Bryant from Pulaski County Circuit Court, where Judge Warren E. Wood had dismissed the case after ruling that the contract should have been awarded to International Graphics but that he could do nothing about the action at that time.

In another case, the court affirmed a ruling by Chancellor Gene Bradley of Clay County that a Corning zoning ordinance was void and without effect.

The ruling came in a suit filed by the city against Leon Watson, who was building a residential building in an area the city contended had been zoned commercial, rather than residential.

Watson had applied for and received a permit to build a residence on some lots he owned in the area and had begun construction when he was notified that the permit was issued in error and that it would be canceled, with a refund of his permit fee.

However, Watson continued to build the residence. When the city sued, Watson contended that the ordinance was invalid because it was not published in form and manner required by law and because the purported zoning code of Corning had not been printed as a code in book form as required by the statutes.

In other cases, the court:

—Affirmed the decision by Judge John S. Mosby of Crittenden County Circuit Court that Thomas Mitchell Hilderbrandt, who pleaded guilty to burglary and received a five-year prison sentence, was not coerced into making the plea and was not deprived of his constitutional right to effective assistance of counsel.

Satellite is tucked into a perfect orbit

LOMPOC, Calif. (AP) — Their long-awaited satellite tucked in a perfect orbit over the North and South poles, scientists are checking out systems board the ERTS spacecraft in preparation for receiving first pictures of the earth Tuesday.

The $176 million spacecraft was launched Sunday from Vandenberg Air Force Base here to begin a year of global environmental measurements that scientists hope will usher in a new era of using space technology to monitor earth's natural resources.

ERTS, which is short for Earth Resources Technology Satellite, thundered aloft atop a white Delta launch rocket that flawlessly boosted the 1,900-pound spacecraft 500 miles above the South Pole and into a circular orbit.

"Everything looks fine—in fact it looks excellent," said Dr. John Clark, director of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Goddard Spaceflight Center at Greenbelt, Md. The center will control ERTS during the year in which the 10-foot-long satellite will circle the earth every 103 minutes.

Equipped with three television cameras and a special radiation-sensing device, the spacecraft will photograph the entire globe every 18 days.

Scientists hope to use the pictures to monitor natural resources such as crops, forests, schools of fish, water supplies and grasslands.

They believe the pictures, taken through filters that measure radiation reflected from the planet, can help in mapping, spotting earthquake fault systems and locating mineral and oil deposits.

"This is probably the most important launch of an unmanned satellite NASA has ever made," Clark said.

"This mission has more potential to bring direct benefits to the average man than perhaps anything we've done so far in the unmanned space program."

Flight controllers at Goddard plan to spend today and part of Tuesday checking spacecraft systems before the first pictures are taken later Tuesday. They will be made as the butterfly-shaped spacecraft sweeps southward across Canada's Maritime Provinces. In the next orbit, ERTS is expected to take pictures of a swath down the Missouri and Mississippi River valleys.

Notes filed during a China visit

EDITOR'S NOTE—Wes Gallagher, president of The Associated Press, is in China to negotiate a: exchange of news and photos with Hsinhua, the Chinese news agency. He filed these notes Sunday.

By WES GALLAGHER

PEKING (AP) — Ousting of the Russian advisers from Egypt has been received with considerable satisfaction here, as showing what happens to those receiving Soviet aid because of Soviet "Socialist imperialism."

The Chinese recall their own experience when they refused to bow to Soviet demands: Russia withdrew the technicians and help it had sent to China.

In conversations the Chinese emphasize what they consider the key difference in aid they provide other nations and the way the Russians provided aid. They say China wants to encourage Socialist revolution but that each country must develop its own kind of this and be independent, not joining any bloc. The Soviets, in their eyes, provide aid only if it gives further Soviet control. They cite the Czechs in the Eastern Bloc as examples of the Soviet way.

China is a land of infinite contradictions and contrasts, defying generalizations or definitions—particularly by instant experts. Chinese officials repeatedly refer to this country as underdeveloped, but they concede there are basic differences between China and countries in other parts of Asia or in Africa.

China is far different, with a cultural history going back thousands of years, impressive universities, thousands of trained technicians, creative scientists, a massive disciplined work force.

American computer scientists from Yale and Carnegie-Mellon universities who are lecturing here say they have been surprised by Chinese advances in this field—that they are less than 18 months behind the United States in the most advanced computer theory and are rapidly closing this gap. They add that the Chinese are farther behind in programming, peripheral equipment and mass-manufacturing techniques, but they believe the Chinese could build a single computer to suit any needed purpose.

The Chinese airline is very safe because it does not fly in thunderstorms around Peking or en route. Our party, en route from Canton to Peking, was grounded overnight at Chengchou, the capital of Honan province, because of storms.

One passenger said that in three flights to Peking he had never reached this city without one grounding. This is apparently due to a lack of equipment for ground-control approaches to the airport.

Chengchou offered a study in contrasts between modern jets and prewar biplanes or the workhorse C47 of the 1940s, still being used as a passenger plane.

Contrasts: traveling to a new petrochemical plant near Peking, one goes for miles through farming areas where farmers labor with their hands as they have for centuries, using every inch of land. Back-breaking labor is done by immensely strong men and women carrying huge loads.

You arrive at a plant controlled by computers, built in a crash program and employing 12,000 persons in a self-contained unit with its own hospital, farm, etc.

"We learned from your problems," said a plant leader, showing pollution-control devices for both water and smoke.

Water cleared of pollutants is used to irrigate rice paddies of the connected farm, and to provide tanks for ducks and carp. A plant official was asked what each family wants, in order of priority. He replied: a bicycle that costs 110 yuan, a sewing machine for 120 and a watch for 100. The wage range is 30-100 yuan monthly.

The petrochemical plant is not far from the caves where Peking Man, dating back half a million years, was found. Scientists have resumed digging there. Three exhibition halls for ancient digging finds from all over China soon will be opened to the public.

Peking has supplanted Copenhagen as the bicycle capital of the world. Workers by the tens of thousands fill the streets every evening, riding home from work, some with watermelons on the backs of their

Five die on state highways

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Five persons lost their lives on Arkansas' highways this weekend.

State Police said Stephen D. Edwards, 20, of Fayetteville, was killed Sunday when he lost control of his car on a curve on Old Wire Road in Fayetteville.

Officials said Robert E. Greer, 24, of near Strong, was killed when his car was struck head on by a car driven by John P. Wheat, 51, of near Crosssett.

The accident occurred Sunday on U.S. 82 east of El Dorado.

Timothy J. Jones, 16, of North Little Rock, was killed Saturday night in a one-car accident six miles south of Newport on Arkansas 17.

He was a passenger in a car driven by Ransford McDonald, 16, of Newport. Police said that the car ran off the road and overturned four times.

With very few cars and only a fair number of buses, Peking has its traffic problem solved for years. But car and bus drivers move with their horns tied down—the cyclists may conform politically but they risk life and limb with proletarian disdain.

Underindustrialized China may be, but it is not underdeveloped in Western terms. A glimpse of the competition China will give the Japanese and others in Asia can be seen in a tour of an arts and crafts factory employing more than a thousand persons in a loft-type building lacking any air-conditioning. The workers keep to a pace far beyond that usually seen in the West. They produce items ranging from dolls costing less than $1 to carved jade items aimed for the $100,000 market.

In one room with 50 or more cutting lathes a worker sat at his bench carving a large jade piece. It will take him two years and be sold for $90,000.

There is some assembly-line work, with each girl adding one factor to vases.

The average wage is about 70 yuan a month. The plant vice chairman gets 100, the lowest worker about 30.

WANTED! MEN - WOMEN

age 18 and over. Prepare now for U. S. Civil Service job openings during the next 12 months.

Government positions pay high starting salaries. They provide much greater security than private employment and excellent opportunity for advancement. Many positions require little or no specialized education or experience.

But to get one of these jobs, you must pass a test. The competition is keen and in some cases only one out of five pass.

LICENSED BY STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottel

Chicken, Strictly Informal

Dear Helen:
You aren't supposed to pick up fried chicken at a fancy dinner, right? I mean when it's quite formal, with cloth napkins, etc.

So why are hosts ungracious enough to serve chicken or squab or something similar that you can only be comfortable with as "finger food?"

At one of those posh banquets the other night, I went away hungry because it was too much of a hassle, getting the meat off the bone (without having it land in my neighbor's lap).

This is an open letter to those planning dinner parties: Serve fork food! —FOR LOBSTER THERMIDOR

Dear Lobster:
Right and right! Hosts and hostesses: don't take the chicken away unless you're planning a picnic type meal—or can serve up the bird boneless! —H.

Dear Helen:
I heard about a new kind of "RAP" recently: "Report a Pusher." It's going strong in several cities and seems to be having great results.

People who know of pushers and where to find them operating are asked to call a certain number, give a code name or other identification, with this information. Then, if the report results in an arrest, the informer can collect a $100 reward, by simply presenting his code identification.

Dear Against:
Right...if it traps the big ones. Wrong...if it results in a flood of false or inconclusive information that can stall the drug detail in a morass of "nowhere" leads.

Police officers tell me they already have more tips on "pushers" than they can handle. Moreover, these tips usually involve small-timers whose arrests make no dent in the illegal drug racket.

The R.A.P. reward offer, I'm told, increased anonymous tips to over 6,000 a year in one medium-sized city and resulted in no major hauls. It could even, says one of the enforcement men, have protected heavy suppliers at the "little guy."

Another problem is that vindictive people might use R.A.P. to land their enemies in trouble or under surveillance.

Finally, lawmen already know WHO the big dealers are. Their concern is: how to trap them with the goods, and tipsters can seldom supply that much detail. —H.

Dear Helen:
I almost always applaud what you say, but I was shocked at your reply to Mrs. T. W., whose children were excluded from her brother's wedding reception. Since when is a wedding like an X-rated movie: children under 17 not admitted? —INFURIATED

Dear In:
...When the guest list might double if all such children were included—and finances won't stretch. Also, nerves could snap if the younger kids got boisterous. —H.

After reading the letter from the epileptic who was asked to leave the church choir, my mind went back 20 years to a situation my husband faced. He lost a good job due to diagnosed epilepsy, and was left with a wife, two babies, a mortgage and the advice to enter a sheltered workshop. To a brilliant, well educated man, this was a death sentence.

Instead, we tried a new approach: lying! He stopped mentioning his condition and, with a few minor coverups, he secured an excellent job. Today he is a respected executive.

Until people stop taking a horrified attitude toward epileptics, the latter will have to resort to subterfuge, and the irony of it all is that they are often more capable than the "average" person. This may not be the ideal way but (with the help of modern medicine which can usually prevent or lessen seizures) it works!

We have four healthy children, so epilepsy is no deterrent to a "normal" life. —UNDERSTANDS

Pre-nuptial courtiesies fete Miss Royston

Several parties for Miss Margie Royston, bride-elect of Joe B. Scruggs, III of Little Rock, were given for her in mid-July in the capital city. Mrs. Sue Glover and Mrs. Irene Mitchell were hostesses for a miscellaneous shower in the Glover home on July 14. For this party Miss Royston wore a long, cotton frock of green and white polka dots and pinned a daisy corsage at her shoulder. The mothers of the engaged couple, Mrs. Joe B. Scruggs, Jr. and Mrs. G. D. Royston, Jr., also wore daisies.

The 12 guests, including Mrs. Grandy Royston of Arkadelphia, wrote their favorite recipes for the bride-elect and presented her with gifts. Daisies, bachelor buttons and baby's breath centered the table from which green frosted punch, petits fours, nuts and mints were served.

On July 15 a tea was given at the home of Mrs. Jim Shuffield, formerly of Hope, with Mrs. J. R. Wheeler, Mrs. Joe Ford and Mrs. Bill Goodrich, co-hostesses. Mrs. Jan Scruggs of Little Rock, sister-in-law of the groom-elect, was at the guest book, where 90 registered.

Miss Royston wore a long, pale yellow and white dotted voile dress. She and the mothers of the betrothed couple had pink carnation corsages. A silver epergne holding pink carnations, pink rosebuds, agapanthus and baby's breath centered the serving table, where Mrs. Grandy Royston of Arkadelphia poured the pink frosted punch and Miss Susan Shuffield served pink iced petits fours.

Out-of-town guests at the tea included Mrs. Thompson Evans, Jr. of Hope, Miss LeElla Ratcliff of Arkadelphia, Mrs. W. S. Cope of Prescott, aunt of the bride-elect, and Mrs. J. B. Scruggs, Sr., grandmother of the groom-elect and Mrs. Merle Magill, both of Benton.

The bride-elect was feted with a Rice Bag Party on July 19 at the home of Mrs. John Critz. Hostesses were Misses Rosemary Hickey, Rae Ann Spillers and Gayle Harry. The guest of honor wore green and white cotton with a vegetable corsage.

After the guests tied rice bags to be distributed at the reception, they were served cold drinks and cup cakes from a lace-covered table centered with artificial fruit, flowers and kitchen utensils.

Boiling it down

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — If you were a bird, a summer heat wave would be no sweat. Neither would winter's chilling blasts. Birds have no sweat glands. They keep cool by special air sacs and by opening their beaks and vibrating the sides of their throats.

How does a man get to heaven? A country preacher once said there was a tie vote the day the first man was born. The Lord voted for him and Satan voted against him. It is then up to the man how he breaks the tie: for he votes with the Lord or with Satan by the kind of life he leads.

A check doesn't have to be the conventional size unless the law says it does, and in most places the law isn't specific. Checks have been honored that were inscribed on blocks of marble, roof shingles, skis, bottle labels or whitewashed on the side of a cow. One man, angered by a California judge's order to pay $1,500 in a divorce suit, ripped off his shirt and wrote on it a check for the amount. His mate had little trouble converting it to cash. Moral: Wherever you can sign your name, watch out.

Quotable notables: "The capacity to endure the cruelties of life and overcome its misfortunes without despair — this requires a heroism beyond glory, pride and vanity." — Albert Salomon.

Statistics: The Irishman isn't the world's heaviest drinker as legend credits him to be, but he is probably the world's heartiest eater. In his own land he consumes 3,450 calories daily, compared with a typical American intake of 3,240 calories.

Big advantage: Along with having more toothsome smiles, certain members of the alligator family have another dental advantage over the human race. They can grow as many as 40 sets of teeth in a lifetime. Even the mighty elephant gets only six or seven sets. Worth remembering: "I can't say I was in the top half of my college graduating class, but I was in the group that made the top half possible."

It was Elizabeth Barrett Browning who observed, "No man can be called friendless who has God and the companionship of good books."

Television and Radio

(During Cynthia Lowry's vacation, the column is being written by invited guests, each of whom was asked to respond to specific questions about his work in television. Here is the report of an actor who over the past 15 years, has played just two characters—an unbeatable criminal lawyer, Perry Mason, followed by an equally invincible crime-fighter who operates from a wheelchair, NBC's "Ironside.")

By RAYMOND BURR
Q. What is all this about your reported determination to wind up "Ironside" after two more seasons? Are you bored? Or do you get restless and start looking at distant, greener fields?

A. I have always said that I would like to close "Ironside" down at the conclusion of its top year, and it is my feeling that the seventh year will be its best one. (We are going into our sixth.) If I am shown differently, I might change my mind and the series could continue—but I'd have to be shown.

But when it does wind up, there are so many waiting projects—motion pictures, theater, television specials, documentaries, recordings, a whole wide range. I'd like to do a play about Henry the Navigator, the famous Portuguese explorer, and one about Pope John. I hope to do a film based on "The Beach of Falesa," the Robert Louis Stevenson story, and a film in Denmark based on a story by Denmark's top writer, Hans Jergen Lennbourn.

Decorate fancy vests to carry out the important layered look. The ribbon vest is plaided by stripes of grosgrain fused to white polyester doubleknit; the Florentine vest is made of layers of felt fused together.

Fuse a fancy vest

By JOANNE SCHREIBER

The layered look is bigger than ever — and sometimes it's an invisible layer that contributes most to the final fashion effect.

For instance, the vests shown today are made with several layers of material, invisibly fused together with a layer of filmy Stitch Witchery. This amazing weblike material is made of fibers of a thermoplastic adhesive. When it is placed between two layers of fabric and steam-pressed, it melts to fuse the fabrics together invisibly and permanently. Introduced only a few years ago, it has become a sewing room staple.

The fusing technique can be used to apply lace, rick-rack and other trims, to apply decorative or utilitarian patches, to make handbags and wall hangings and bulletin boards. It's the answer to Boy Scout and Girl Scout patches and merit badges, and to the fun patches adored by kids everywhere.

Furthermore, Stitch Witchery can be used for those endless side and bottom drapery hems, for dress hems and to secure facings and interfacings. Ribbon can be fused to felt for unusual belts, and fabric can be fused to cardboard to make desk accessories out of such commonplace items as oatmeal boxes.

You can even make a reversible cape or skirt, just by bonding two fabrics together and edging with braid.

To get you started on fun-and-fancy fusing, we've prepared a leaflet for you, giving complete directions on handling this material, plus instructions for these vests, a Christmas tree skirt and ornaments, and other items. To get your copy, send 50 cents for Leaflet J 221, "Stitchin' Time," c/o this newspaper, Box 503, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y.

STITCHIN' TIPS
DEAR JOANNE: When I make patch pockets, they always come out lumpy at the corners and bottom. Any suggestions? S. W.

DEAR S. W.: Slaysitching is the secret of smooth pockets. Turn, press and stitch a quarter hem at the top of the pocket, folding to the wrong side. To make the top finished hem, turn the stitched edge back on itself, so right sides are together. When you stitch the sides together, continue stitching exactly on the 1/4-inch seam line all the way around the pocket and back up the other side. Notch out the extra fullness in a curved pocket.

Trim seam allowance at hem edges. When you turn the hem, the raw edge of the pocket will curl in neatly, just exactly along the stitching line. Hope that helps. Best—Joanne.

ARMADILLOS
GOT LEPROSY
CARVILLE, La. (AP) — The armadillo population has increased to 53 at the U. S. Public Health Service Hospital.

The animals are being used for research as the result of successful transmission of leprosy to armadillos. Dr. Charles C. Shepard, chief of the leprosy and rickettsia unit at the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, describes as "promising" the use of armadillos in research on leprosy, also known as Hansen's Disease.

Pirates slip past Reds 3-2

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Roberto Clemente, according to Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson, "might be the best player in baseball for one day. When he has to perform—like in the World Series when he wanted to prove he was the best—you see what he does."

Sunday was one of those days for Pittsburgh's brilliant right fielder, his first lame in two weeks since being knocked out of action by an intestinal virus.

Clemente knocked in the game-tying run with an eighth-inning single—his second run batted in of the battle between the National League's division leaders—and moments later scored the winner on Willie Stargell's double as the Pirates slipped past the Reds 3-2.

Elsewhere, in the National League, Philadelphia downed Los Angeles 2-0, San Francisco defeated the New York Mets 5-2, Houston beat the Chicago Cubs 6-5, Atlanta edged St. Louis 3-2, and in a double-header, Montreal swept San Diego 2-1 and 9-1.

In the American League, the Chicago White Sox took two from Cleveland, 2-1 and 4-3, Minnesota did the same to Mil-

Hope defeats Benton in district tourney

The Hope Junior American Legion defeated Benton by a score of 6 to 2 in the first game of the District Tournament Friday night at Sheridan.

Hope started off hitting and just kept going. They picked up nine hits with a homerun by Jimmy Dale Fincher and Rowland Rice. Huddleston and Rowland each picked up triples with Ingram getting two singles and Young, Rowland, and White getting a single.

The winning pitcher for Hope was Rowland giving up one walk, four hits, and striking out eight men.

Hope plays again tonight at 8:30 against Sheridan at Sheridan.

Yancey takes Golf Classic title

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — "I guess maybe missing those two cuts in a row was a blessing in disguise," Bert Yancey said.

The former West Point cadet had just outlasted surprising Tom Olozas in a sudden-death playoff for the title and the $30,000 first prize Sunday in the American Golf Classic.

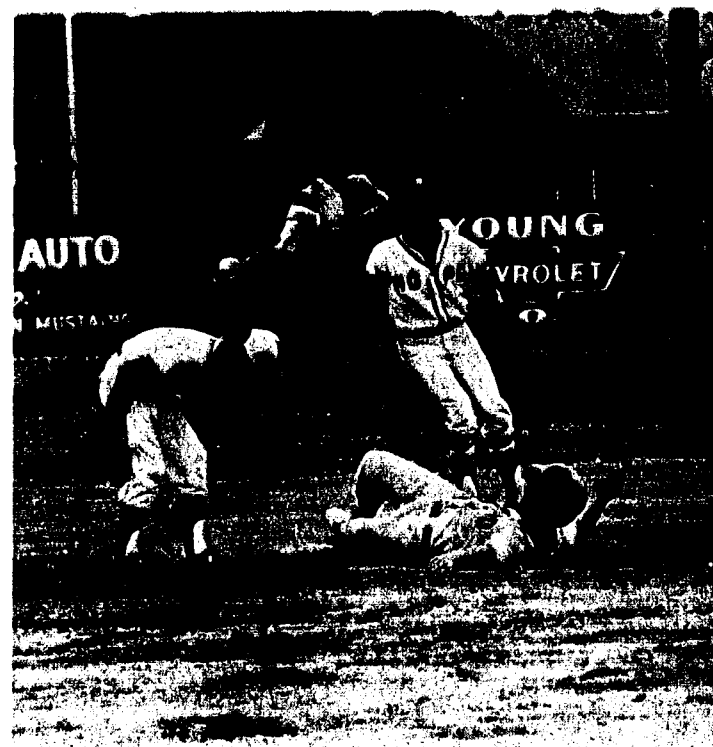

He was discussing a recent slump which hit rock bottom when he failed to qualify for the final two rounds in recent tournaments at Chicago and Cleveland.

"It jolted me," said Yancey, for years one of the steadiest players on the tour. "I said to myself, 'Hey, you better start getting some blisters on your hands, start working some.'"

So he went on a regimen of practice, work, practice, work. It paid off in the innervating muggy heat that settled over the 7,100-yard Firestone Country Club course like a hot, wet blanket.

He blew a three-stroke lead on the final day with a two-over-par 72 and found himself tied at the end of the regulation 72 holes with Olozas, a 29-year-old tour sophomore. Each had a four-under-par total of 276, Olozas after a final round of 68.

On the first playoff hole, a 230-yard par three, both eached the green. Yancey lagged up two feet short. Olozas, putting from about 30 feet, boldly ran his first putt three feet past, then missed it coming back.

SAFE—Mark Harris, shortstop, and David Sisson, second base, above, make an unsuccessful attempt to tag a Malvern runner at second base during the 13-14 year old All-Star game Friday night. Artis Perry, at right, winds up for a fast pitch. Perry and Tim Gregory shared mound duties for 7 hits.

Malvern downs Hope in district playoff

Babe Ruth baseball at its best was seen in the final game of the District Tournament that concluded Saturday night at Legion Field.

In a ten inning game, Malvern finally downed a strong Texarkana team 3 to 2 to capture the District Three Babe Ruth title and advance to the State Tournament being played this week in Searcy.

Malvern's Childers was the winning pitcher giving up two runs on eight hits while Texarkana's Shimpock allowed three runs on six hits. Malvern committed six errors while Texarkana had five miscues.

Friday night's contest for the 13-14 year old championship also saw Malvern's nine come through with a 8 to 6 decision over the Hope All-Stars. Hope collected six hits, scored six runs off of the winning pitcher, Cranford. Hope's Artis Perry and Tim Gregory shared the mound duties and allowed seven hits and 8 runs.

In the second contest Friday night, the Hope 15 year-olds lost to the Texarkana team, 12 to 8. Hope scored their eight runs on five hits and three Texarkana errors. Robinson was charged with the lost yielding seven base hits and eleven runs before relief pitcher Mike Butler came to the mound in the 4th inning. Bunch was the winning pitcher for Texarkana.

Duane Bobick: 'Great White Hope'

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Somebody asked Duane Bobick if he minded being called "The Great White Hope" of heavyweight boxing. He smiled, yanked off a blood-stained jersey, and replied, "It doesn't bother me, I've been called all kinds of names."

Whether Bobick will be a box-office pleasing challenger to the rule of professional heavyweight Joe Frazier and challengers Muhammad Ali and George Foreman, all black, remains academic.

But one thing became certain

Torre, Aaron hopes to break slump

ATLANTA (AP) — Joe Torre and Hank Aaron try Tuesday night to atone for poor past performances in the annual mid-summer baseball classic between the American and National leagues.

"I've been a lousy All-Star," said Torre on the eve of the game's 43rd renewal at Atlanta Stadium, a home run hitter's paradise dubbed the "Launching Pad."

Aaron, who has launched many of his career homers here with the Braves, also continues in a perplexing All-Star slump which he can't explain.

"I don't know what it is in All-Star games ... 'I just haven't done much in them,'" said Aaron, a National League slugger for 19 years who has a unimposing .186 batting average in this star-studded affair.

Torre, the third baseman picked by the fans, and Aaron, one of the outfielders, are among the National League swingers who hope to pad the senior circuit's advantage in the series that began in 1933. The NL leads 23-18 with one tie.

Fischer forges ahead in match

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Bobby Fischer forged into the lead in the world chess championship match Sunday night for the first time after outplaying Soviet defender Boris Spassky throughout their sixth game and forcing Spassky to resign.

They go into the seventh game Tuesday with Fischer leading 3½ to 2½. With 18 games still to be played, Fischer needs a total of 12½ points to take the title, while Spassky needs only 12 to retain it. A win counts one game point and a draw a half point.

Fischer had never beaten Spassky before they came to Reykjavik, but he did it for the third time Sunday, winning roars of applause from about 2,000 spectators.

Playing with the white chessmen, the American challenger opened with a move he has rarely used. Arriving 10 minutes after his clock was started, Fischer moved his queen's bishop pawn two squares forward. In his important games, Fischer had seldom opened with anything but his king's pawn.

Experts were surprised. Many said this must have jarred Spassky but the Russian did not show it if he was rattled.

International grandmaster Isaac Kashdan said in an analysis for The Associated Press that "it was Fischer all the way," using one of Spassky's favorite offensives, known as the Queen's Gambit Declines.

From the seventh move, Fischer was able to build an advantage in a series of exchanges that left Spassky with hanging pawns. He attacked Spassky's weak queenside pawns, then switched the attack to the kingside.

Fischer was able to exchange his knight for the black bishop and advanced quickly on the king's side. With Fischer's queen and bishop able to operate on two good diagonals, Spassky was soon reduced to helplessness, Kashdan said.

With 20 minutes playing time left after his 41st move, Spassky stopped his clock and gave Fischer his hand, meaning he was conceding.

The American briskly signed the scoresheet and left the stage while Spassky, looking dejected, chatted a few moments with the referees.

Some of the experts felt Fischer has now succeeded in out-psyching Spassky in the war of nerves accompanying the match.

The Russian champion had appeared genial and collected in the early stages in Iceland, when Fischer delayed the match for nine days to demand more prize money, then lost the first two games, the first on an error and the second by forfeit.

Travs beat Brewers 8-7

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Travelers beat the San Antonio Brewers 8-7 in Texas League baseball action here Sunday.

The Travelers trailed by five runs in the middle of the game, but the margin was narrowed to 7-6 in the ninth inning.

Bill Bright hit a homerun in the ninth, his 16th, and brought in Al Hrabosky, giving the Travelers the one-point edge, where they remained.

Montreal's Mike Torrez tossed a four-hitter, then rookie Balar Moore went him one better with a three-hitter in the nightcap against the Padres. Torrez struck out six batters while Moore fanned 13.

In the first game, Jim Fairey drove in both Expos runs with singles in the first and eighth innings.

San Diego assaulted four San Diego pitchers in the second game, Tim McCarver leading the 12-hit attack with a double and a single for three RBI and Bob Bailey chipping in with a two-run homer.

Hulme's McLaren wins at Can-Am

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer

Denis Hulme, auto racing's "Golden Bear," says he hasn't fully recovered from a jarring wreck he had in Atlanta two weeks ago. You'd never have guessed it.

The 37-year-old New Zealander climbed back into his Gulf McLaren at Watkins Glen, N.Y., Sunday and did what McLaren drivers have done in 40 of the last 46 Can-Am road races—he romped to a wire-to-wire victory.

Not only that, 1971 series champion Pete Revson rode his partner's slipstream across the finish line by 1.4 seconds to nail second place. It was the 28th time since 1966 that McLaren team cars have finished 1-2 in a race.

Hulme, who won the world driving title in 1967 and still is a McLaren contender in Formula 1 Grand Prix racing, added $17,900 to the $612,545 he already has taken out of the Can-Am series.

If Hulme was still a bit out of sorts, it wasn't the case with determined Bobby Allison, America's busiest driver.

The oldest of two driving brothers from Hueytown, Ala. alertly drove by old pro David Pearson as the latter scooted down pit road in a 500 mile stock car race at Atlanta, and went on to snatch his fifth major victory of the season.

Allison, driving a Junior Johnson Chevrolet, led the final 140 miles to pick up the winner's check of $15,000.

Pearson, seeking his fifth triumph in the Wood Brothers' Mercury, had taken advantage of a yellow light slowdown to make a quick pit stop while leading by about four seconds. But the green racing flag dropped as he scooted back into action, and by that time Allison had taken over the lead for good.

Allison's margin over second place Richard Petty's Plymouth was 12 seconds. Pearson was credited with third.

Roger McCluskey of Tucson, Ariz., outdueled Bay Darnell of Deerfield, Ill. to win the Yankee 250 stock car race at Indianapolis Raceway Park.

Driving a 1971 Plymouth, McCluskey averaged 78.803 m.p.h. over the twisting 2½-mile track. He trailed Darnell by as much as 63 seconds after a long pit stop to replace a bad coil on the 67th lap, but roared back to take the lead for good with four laps to go. Darnell drove a 1972 Dodge.

Bribe offer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Federal and local authorities were seeking an anonymous telephone caller who Cincinnati Reds pitcher Wayne Simpson said offered him a bribe to throw a weekend game with Pittsburgh.

The Cincinnati pitcher reported the call immediately to Reds Manager Sparky Anderson and the FBI and local police were later notified.

Key issues in Dixie

By WILLIAM L. CHAZE

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The age of veteran incumbents and the Democratic party's national ticket have surfaced as key issues in senatorial campaigns across Dixie.

Republicans are making their first serious bid to capture Senate seats in several states.

The first round of primaries eliminated one veteran, Sen. B. Everett Jordan, 75, of North Carolina. Another, Sen. John McClellan, 76, of Arkansas, was forced into a runoff. McClellan survived, but is taking nothing for granted this summer.

Sen. James O. Eastland of Mississippi handily defeated primary opposition, but is stumping the state in sultry summer heat to fend off a Republican challenger who says it is time for a change.

Sen. Allen Ellender of Louisiana, who went to the Senate after the assassination of Huey Long in 1935, is fighting for his political life against a young and popular Shreveport lawyer. The Democratic primary will be Aug. 19.

Sen. John Sparkman of Alabama has the Democratic nomination for a fifth term, but a former member of the Nixon Administration poses a serious threat in November.

The leader of the Southern bloc, Sen. Richard B. Russell of Georgia, died last year and an Atlanta lawyer, David Gambrell, was appointed by Gov. Jimmy Carter to serve out the remainder of his term. He faces a crowded field in the

Aug. 8 primary.

Age was believed to be the decisive factor in the defeat of North Carolina's Jordan by Rep. Nick Galifianakis, the 43-year-old son of Greek immigrant parents.

Jordan admitted later to making a major blunder by not taking Galifianakis seriously until late in the campaign. The congressman made his race with the help of an army of young volunteers.

The senator is now helping Galifianakis in his race against Republican senatorial nominee Jesse Helms, a Raleigh television executive who has become well-known in North Carolina through a decade of television editorials.

Political observers say the general election could go either way and Republicans are claiming to have their first good shot at a Senate seat in the Tar Heel state. Gov. Bob Scott, a Democrat, says Galifianakis' position was not helped by the party's choice of Sen. George McGovern as the presidential nominee.

President Nixon carried North Carolina in 1968, raising Republican hopes that he will be able to carry large numbers of GOP candidates into office in the state this fall, including Helms.

In Louisiana, age is a dominant issue in Ellender's campaign for re-election. He will be 82 by November while his opponent for the nomination is 40-year-old J. Bennett Johnston Jr., who came within 5,000 votes of winning the Democratic gubernatorial nomination last year.

Ellender, a veteran of 36 years in the Senate, has the support of Louisiana's other senator, Russell Long. But Long has refused to criticize Johnston, whose father was one of the senator's earliest supporters and a close friend of Russell's father, Huey.

DIES IN FIRE

MORRILTON, Ark. (AP) — Kenneth Doyle Lewis, 40, of Morrilton died Sunday when fire gutted his four-room frame home here.

Lewis apparently was asleep when the fire broke out about 5 a.m.

Prison Rodeo is August 25-27

The first annual Arkansas Prison Rodeo, featuring inmate and "free world" events, has been scheduled at the Cummins Prison Unit at Varner for August 25-27.

The rodeo will be produced by major Arkansas stock contractors and suppliers for the state's rodeos including: Lumas Shaw of Holland, Ray Lee of Mt. Vernon, Bob Hill of Heber Springs, Andrews & Lawery of Cecil, and Sam McCallies of Benton. These suppliers have agreed to take their best stock to Cummins for the events.

Judges and clowns for the events are all Arkansas rodeo people who have agreed to appear during the festivities.

All free world persons are heartily invited to attend this event, which is a "first" for Arkansas. Judging by the success of such events in Texas and Oklahoma, Arkansas will

Japan's prime minister accepts talk invitation

WASHINGTON (AP) — New Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka has accepted an invitation for wide-ranging talks with President Nixon in Hawaii Aug. 31 and Sept. 1.

No agenda was announced for the meeting, which the official language of a joint Sunday night announcement billed as "an exchange of views" between the two Pacific allies.

Presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said there will be a "full range of discussion of U.S.-Japanese relations, including trade."

The meeting will come less than two weeks after Nixon's expected nomination by his party to run for a second term.

For Tanaka, who was elected earlier this month, the meeting with Nixon will precede Japanese diplomatic talks with China and the Soviet Union.

"We feel it is an appropriate time to meet with the prime minister," said Ziegler in response to a question following the announcement.

The Hawaii gathering will be the second summit for the two powers this year. Nixon met in San Clemente, Calif., in January with Tanaka's predecessor, Eisaku Sato.

The January meeting was intended to soothe the feelings of the Japanese who were buffeted by the administration's announcements last summer of direct approaches to mainland China and of economic moves sharply affecting U.S. trading partners.

The administration last August imposed a 10-per-cent surcharge on imports without advising Japan, the United States' second-largest trading partner.

The new summit is seen in part as a continuation of the January effort to better relations that were ruffled by the moves of 1971.

Ambassador William Eberle, Nixon's special representative for trade negotiations, left for talks with Japanese leaders Friday after a White House session with the President.

MISS TEENAGE ARKANSAS—Rhonda Renee Rice, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Rice of Watson, was crowned the new Miss Teenage Arkansas earlier this month and will compete in the national contest in Atlanta, Ga., next month. Local winners included Anita McCauley, 17, of Hope, winner of the Most Photogenic title and the best essay award, and Jakell Young, also of Hope, who was given an award for the best "sponsor letter."

Agnew attacks Demo nominee

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—Vice President Spiro T. Agnew criticized Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern Sunday night and warned Republicans not to be complacent about the election.

Speaking to about 350 persons at a $100-a-ticket cocktail party in Anchorage, Agnew said even though the South Dakota senator trailed President Nixon by a wide margin in political polls, he was a hard campaigner.

"We must remember that only a few months ago he showed only 5 to 10 per cent in the polls and now he is the nominee of the other party," Agnew said. "We cannot take any comfort in the fact quite a few points now separate the President from him."

The vice president attacked McGovern's positions on amnesty for draft evaders and marijuana.

Agnew said McGovern proposed a "blanket amnesty" that made no sense and did dishonor to Americans who had died on Vietnam battlefields "replacing those who deserted their country."

The vice president said Democratic positions on marijuana were inconsistent because of proposals to dispense the substance in the same manner as alcohol.

"While on one hand they say they don't want to legalize marijuana, they on the other hand talk about regulation, which implies a kind of legalization," he said.

"For the first time, this year the voters will have a clear choice in presidential candidates," Agnew said. "It would be a tragedy if, after four years, the voters did not return Richard Nixon for another four years."

The vice president broke his tightly scheduled Northwest campaign trip—his first official jaunt on behalf of the Nixon reelection effort—with a few hours of relaxation before attending the cocktail party.

THOUGHTS

For everything there is a season, and a time for every matter under heaven: a time to love, and a time to hate; a time for war, and a time for peace.—Ecc. 3:8.

Time is not measured by the passing of years, but by what one does, what one feels, and what one achieves.—Jawaharlal Nehru, Indian Nationalist leader.

"If I say, 'I will forget my complaint, I will put off my sad countenance, and of good cheer.'"—Job 9:27.

This life is not for complaints, but for satisfaction.—Henry David Thoreau, naturalist.

O Lord, why dost thou cast me off? Why dost thou hide thy face from me? Afflicted and close to death from my youth up, I suffer thy terrors: I am helpless.—Psalms 85:14, 15.

Strength is born in the deep silence of long-suffering hearts, not amid joy.—Felicja Hemans, English novelist.

By Oswald & James Jacoby Oswald: "South ruffed the diamond opening and remarked, 'I guess I should have responded six diamonds to your Blackwood four no-trump to show an ace and a good void. That would have got us to seven.' Then South proceeded to go down at six."

Jim: "Let me see if I can work out the play. South ruffed the diamond; played out two of dummy's trumps; paused for a moment when East showed out; then cashed dummy's last trump and ran dummy's clubs. West just refused to ruff at any time and eventually dummy would be down to diamonds. South would wind up taking five clubs; five trumps and one spade, but that would be one short."

Oswald: "The funny thing about the hand was that South never saw the simple, winning line of play."

Jim: "Probably he suffered from 'Scott's syndrome.' Players with that illness just can't waste a high card."

Oswald: "You are entirely correct. South played the hand just as you surmised. He completely overlooked the play of overtaking dummy's good jack of trumps with his own ace. This play would set up West's 10 as the master trump, but that would be West's only trick. South would run off high spades and high clubs until such time as West chose to take his good trump. Then South would ruff in with his last low trump and claim."

Tobacco provokes emphysema

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—Recently I had pneumonia and an X ray revealed I had emphysema. I was told to quit smoking (easier said than done) and now I find if I quit smoking there isn't any guarantee it will arrest the emphysema.

To tell the truth, I'm not even sure what emphysema is or what happens to your lungs. Is this a serious disease or is it overrated? Could you tell me exactly what it is and what happens if it continues to get worse and how a person would know. Does it progress rapidly?

Dear Reader—Yes, emphysema is a very serious disease. To understand emphysema, you need to consider the lungs. The main windpipe, or trachea, divides into a right and left bronchus. These two main airways continue to branch into smaller airways until they terminate in numerous little blind sacs called alveoli. Think of these as little bottles. The bottle neck is the main location where emphysema strikes. In emphysema, this opening becomes constricted so that it is difficult for air to pass in or out of the lung. The nature of breathing is such that this obstruction tends to trap air in the air sacs, causing them to be overdistended.

This causes too much stale air to be kept in the small air sacs. Characteristically, the lungs of a person with emphysema are over-inflated, partially filled with stale air. Despite vigorous exhaling, an excess amount of old air remains in the lungs. The accumulation of old air without enough oxygen makes it difficult for the circulation to get enough oxygen from the lungs to supply the body. The severity of symptoms caused by emphysema literally depends upon how much old air is trapped in the lungs. As the condition progresses, the absence of sufficient oxygen leads to breathlessness and decreased ability to do physical exercise.

Cigarette smoking aggravates the obstruction at the bottle neck to the air sac. Some individuals are essentially allergic to cigarette smoke, which makes this condition even worse for them. While there is no guarantee that stopping smoking will eliminate the problem for someone who already has difficulties, in many individuals it results in marked improvement and essentially causes the disease to stop progressing. Your doctor was absolutely right in telling you to quit smoking cigarettes. How can you tell what's going on? Mostly by progressive breathlessness or increased evidence of shortness of breath with physical exertion.

It's impossible to say how rapidly such a disorder will progress in an individual without having all the medical information available. Even then it is difficult. The most important factor, though, is what you do about yourself. This specifically means staying completely away from cigarettes forever and following carefully the advice your doctor gives you in reference to breathing exercises, weight control and possibly medicine.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The Suwannee River rises in the Okefenokee Swamp of southern Georgia, flows in a winding southerly direction through Florida and empties into the Gulf of Mexico. The river's name is referred to in Stephen Foster's song, "Old Folks at Home," or "Swanee River," which is the state song of Florida. The World Almanac says.

Who is the real George McGovern?

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL, Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — As a boy, George McGovern was that nice kid, the one who preferred the piano and his stamp collection to playing kick-the-can. He was a shy one, in his neat, plain clothes and hand-me-down shoes, this slow-speaking, serious son of a minister.

His shyness and a conviction that it was a fault to be conquered propelled young McGovern into becoming a crack high school debater with its demands on logic and facts, commitment and the ability to listen.

And everything that followed sprang from that, as if by some unseen plan for ever-widening horizons: McGovern would learn to revile war while flying bombers, he would try the ministry and be disillusioned by its businesslike ways, he would be a professor for the give-and-take with the young.

And he would turn a social conscience to practical politics, first in the House of Representatives, then as a food-for-peace administrator, then as antiwar senator, and finally—in the shambles of 1968 Chicago—decide unhesitatingly that 1972 would be his year to lead a dramatically different Democratic party back into the White House.

The George McGovern, turning age 50, who stood before the Democratic National Convention in Miami Beach and said "come home America," is the issue and product of small-town, middle-class America of the Depression, the son of a Methodist preacher who followed the hard credo of John Wesley.

Joseph McGovern, the father, had followed the Dakota-fever pioneers who settled the northern prairies. He was so successful in a spiritual, but not financial, way that he built a half dozen churches in North Dakota.

Joseph's first wife died childless. He was 48 when he married again in 1919 to a woman 20 years his junior and Frances McLean McGovern bore him two girls and two sons. George, delivered by Dr. James Hollingsworth in the bedroom of the Avon, S.D. parsonage—was the oldest boy.

"He was a bright and curious child and often wandered off from the others—usually in the company of some stray dog," says Mrs. Grace Kiehlbach, whose children played with George. Mostly, those who knew McGovern then, remember him that way: a nice, moral withdrawn youngster.

George was 6 when the family moved to Mitchell, a South Dakota town of 14,000. His father was a stern disciplinarian, one who earned respect more than love, requiring that his children learn to read aloud from the Bible, even before they entered school.

It was in such an atmosphere that the future nominee spent his youth. In the first grade, although he could already read, George shied from reading aloud. His teacher, mistaking withdrawal for slowness, almost held him back.

But as a high school sophomore, his intelligence and application caused an English teacher to encourage George to try out for the debating team.

His high school history teacher and debate coach, S. Robert Pearson, recalls that "the most interesting thing about George was his friendship and acceptability by everyone. He was never part of any clique or particular set, but was respected by all the kids....He and his debating colleagues were always out to define the truth and they did it with such zeal that they frightened most students they debated with."

He was a fine student, involved in school activities, but nobody remembers him as a big-man-on-campus. Principal George Janke, now semi-retired in Mitchell, says he was "clean cut a fine gentleman in every respect, modest, unassuming, not a pusher."

The 1940 school yearbook lists: glee club 3 years; extemporaneous speaking 2 years; debate 3 years; class play "When Stars Shine"; Vocations Club 1 year; Class Board 1 year." and as a final summing up of George McGovern's tenure in Mitchell high, there was this line: "For a debater—he's a nice kid."

McGovern's partner in those years was Eddie Mizel, as quick and clever as McGovern was deliberate and meticulous. They began winning as McGovern won a forensic scholarship to Dakota Wesleyan University in Mitchell.

"It really changed my life, no question about it," biographer Robert Sam Anson quotes the presidential candidate in "McGovern," a biography. "If I had not gone out for debate, there is not a chance in the world, in my opinion, that I would have ever come to the United States Senate. It was the one thing that I could do well."

Thirty miles northwest of Mitchell, in Woonsocket, McGovern and Mizel met the Stegeberg twins, Ila and Eleanor.

"There were many debates," recalls Ila Stegeberg Pennington, "but only one that we won. The relationship with him (George) then was purely in a detached way, as a debater from Mitchell. He was an excellent debater, not only as a speaker, but he was also so thorough in his presentations."

The twins were from a motherless home, reared by their grandparents. Their father, Earl, disenchanted by the ups and downs of farm prices, turned Democrat and eventually became county chairman. As Eleanor said later: "I grew up thinking that the only way one spent a Sunday afternoon was discussing and debating politics."

Ila remembers that George had come a long way then from the extreme shyness of his younger days, "I think probably he still has a bit of that," she says now.

After that one loss, George and his partner returned many times to Woonsocket and bested the Stegeberg sisters in debate. McGovern met the girls again when all three were freshmen at Dakota Wesleyan a 500-enrollment conservative liberal arts college.

"After that there was really no one else," Eleanor recalls. They were married by McGovern's father while he was on leave from primary flight training in 1943.

When World War II broke out, McGovern was 19 and in his sophomore year. He was serving the first of three years as class president and gaining widening recognition as a debater. A speech called "My Brother's Keeper" was chosen one of the 12 best of 1942 in the United States by the National Council of Churches.

Eleanor followed as her husband completed training as a bomber pilot. When he was sent to Italy in February 1944, she returned to South Dakota to await the first of their five children.

Lt. McGovern, then 22, was captain of a B24 Liberator bomber called the Dakota Queen. He prided himself on never missing a mission, and even flew when his father died of a heart attack in December 1944.

The Dakota Queen was one of 400 bombers en route to blast Pilsen, Czechoslovakia, cruising at 25,000 feet when two of its four engines quit. McGovern coaxed the crippled ship over the target, and made an emergency landing on the island of Vis, on a strip barely long enough for fighters. For his "intrepid spirit, outstanding ability and rare devotion to duty," McGovern was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross.

In all, McGovern flew 35 missions. On the last, his plane was hit by flak, blowing out the nose, brakes and hydraulic system. For bringing the ship in, McGovern won the Air Medal.

Home again, with a family to support, McGovern returned to Dakota Wesleyan. He studied history, with the idea of becoming a teacher. He delved into philosophy and theology, one day quietly abandoning his father's fundamentalist Wesleyan orthodoxy to become a regular Methodist.

As his thinking changed, before his senior year was out, he told Eleanor he would become a minister. Taking up debating once more, he advocated world government, in the way of many soldiers who return home convinced their war must be the last.

Before graduation, McGovern was accepted at Garrett Theological Seminary, near Northwestern University in Illinois. At the same time he became a student minister at Diamond Lake, Ill.

What he sought was to write sermons, instead he found a minister held a lot of hands, listened to a lot of sad stories. He was interested in touching lives; he felt the church was more interested in gaining members.

In late 1947, McGovern yielded to the history professors at Northwestern who wanted him to become a teacher. In the first year, finances were tight for a family that now had two children. They eased in the second year when McGovern received a teaching fellowship. He was exposed to liberalism at Northwestern.

When Henry Wallace decided to strike out for the presidency on the Progressive party ticket in 1948, McGovern became an adherent. "One searches his official biography in vain for some mention of the man or McGovern's regard for him," says Anson in his study of McGovern. But, he adds, "intellectually, emotionally, politically, McGovern was committed to Wallace and to what he perceived as the cause he stood for."

McGovern wrote the Mitchell

Daily Republic: "I'm tired of listening to the thoughtless jeers and charges of 'crackpot' and 'Communist' being thrown his way. If someone doesn't come to my rescue soon, I'm going to be forced to vote for the 'crackpot' next November."

McGovern went to the Progressive party convention and was appalled to find the Communist influence he thought had been only a smear was showing itself clearly. He was so soured by election time that he didn't vote at all.

His graduate studies at Northwestern finished, McGovern returned to Dakota Wesleyan—this time as a teacher. He became a student favorite, but not of the school's board or Mitchell's American Legion Post. He worked on his dissertation while teaching and made it known he was for a cease-fire in Korea and recognition of Red China.

When he left, in 1952, students dedicated the Dakota Wesleyan yearbook, "Tumbleweed," to him.

"In the short time he has been with us," the dedication read, "George has found a place in the hearts of students both in and out of the classroom. He is one of those capable few who can be associated intimately with the students and share their problems, yet command their respect in the deepest sense of the word ..."

George McGovern, the minister's son, left the students, about to take his first whack at Democratic Party politics.

GEORGE MCGOVERN

Endorcement is slammed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly 300 members of the American Newspaper Guild, a union representing news workers, have opposed the union endorsement of Sen. George S. McGovern for president.

They said in a quarter-page ad in Sunday's Washington Post that the Guild has no business endorsing "any candidate for any office at any time or place."

The ad was signed by 298 editors and reporters in the Washington area, most from The Associated Press, United Press International, The Baltimore Sun, the New York Times, The Washington Post and The Washington Star-News.

The Guild's executive board issued an endorsement of McGovern on July 13 after he won the Democratic nomination in Miami Beach.

But the protesting members said in the ad that, "The Guild has no business interjecting its members into a partisan political role."
